

Healthy, Sustainable Susquehanna Communities

Nearly 500 miles in length, the Susquehanna Greenway is one of our greatest regional resources. It is a corridor of parks, trails, river access points, and conserved areas, connecting people to the natural and cultural treasures of the Susquehanna River and its West Branch. The Susquehanna Greenway conserves the environment for all living things and balances the needs of generations today and tomorrow.

Take Action to Save Keystone Conservation Funding

Governor Corbett's proposed 2012-13 budget eliminates all conservation, park, and recreation funding from the Keystone Recreation, Park and Conservation Fund. It is the biggest cut to conservation funding ever proposed in Pennsylvania.

Photo: The Riverwalk in Williamsport was made possible with support from the Keystone Fund

Keystone Funding helps to make park, trail, and conservation projects possible around the state and within the Susquehanna Greenway. To see how the Keystone Fund helped to create recreational opportunities in your stretch of the Greenway, see the list of projects funded in each county.

Help Needed for River Cleanups

The Susquehanna's riverbanks are in need of a good spring cleaning! Last year's flood has left portions of the banks along the river and her tributaries looking less than stellar. Numerous volunteer groups have planned cleanup events within the Greenway and need volunteer help. There are many events planned to coincide with Earth Day, including the April 21 & 22 Wyoming County Riverbank Cleanup. Learn about this event and others like it at our website, click here.

Events Celebrate Greenways

The Merrill Linn Conservancy is hosting a series of fun, family events in Union County on weekends in April as well as Arbor Day. Now in its 9th year, this Earth Month Celebration explores critical environmental issues that affect the sustainability and well being of our communities. This year's theme: Greenways Connect Communities. Events include guided walks, a birds of prey demonstration, bike rides, tree plantings, and more! Greenway Partnership applied for and was granted this team from ACCT.

The volunteers worked in Shickshinny, Berwick, Bloomsburg, and Falls from March 12 - April 4 before moving to other parts of Appalachia. In our area their work focused on cleaning public parks, trails, and areas that were affected by the flood.

They spent two days assisting the Susquehanna Warrior Trail Council with litter and debris removal from the walking and biking trail near Shickshinny. They also used shovels to scrape away flood mud that coated much of the trail.

"What an extremely great bunch of young men and women," exclaimed Warrior Trail Council member Lance Kittelson. "They worked so hard all day long and we really accomplished more than we thought we could with their help. We cleared over 1,000 ft of dried mud off the trail, picked up litter, cleared brush, and they assisted in recovering historical remnants of the old bank building for the local historical society."

In Falls, the team disinfected the playground, and cleaned about two miles of riverbank. Working with local outfitter Susquehanna Kayak & Canoe the volunteers cleaned up some of the river islands.

"Working in Falls was great," said team leader Patrick Skoviara. "Local students from EI HAB Human Services were a huge help along one of the streambanks and paddling to clean the islands was different perspective of the damage."

Thank you to ACCT for granting us this volunteer team and to the following partners: Columbia-Montour Boy Scout Council, EI HAB Human Services, Inc, Boroughs of Shickshinny, Berwick, Bloomsburg, and Exeter Township, D&L Heritage Area, Susquehanna Kayak & Canoe, Deitrich Theatre, and Bloomsburg school teachers, First United Methodist Church, Ardee's Foodrinkery and Exeter Township Senior Center for providing meals.

Volunteers Green Muncy

If you haven't noticed, the town of Muncy along the West Branch is looking pretty green these days. Thanks to the intrepid volunteer work of the Borough's Shade

Tree Commission over 300 trees have been installed and 29 more are set to be planted this spring. Read more about their projects here.

New Boat Ramps!

PPL Holtwood has begun work to build two new boat ramps and docks and expand the parking area at the Pequea Boat Launch on the Susquehanna River in Lancaster County. “PPL is committed, as part of its operating license for the Holtwood hydroelectric plant, to expanding recreational opportunities for the public along the Susquehanna River,” said John M. Levitski, PPL’s regional community relations director for the Lancaster area. “This work will improve recreational facilities at Holtwood in time for the summer boating season,” he said. The project is expected to be finished by the middle of May. More information is available at www.pplweb.com.

Water Conservation Contest

Since 1973 American Rivers has helped protect and restore more than 150,000 miles of rivers. American Rivers has teamed up with Plow & Hearth in a contest to promote water conservation. The WaterColors contest, runs through September 30, 2012. To enter, submit your artistic expression inspired by water and colors. Submissions can be anything ranging from poems to a rain barrel painted with your favorite colorful river scene – anything that captures the spirit of WaterColors. Entries will be judged on aesthetic impact, incorporation of color and water and originality. To learn more, check out the contest website here.

Blankets for Flood Victims

Thanks to 55 Bucknell University students, children and families who lost many of their belongings to the September 2011 flood will be able to curl up and find some comfort in homemade fleece blankets they can call their own.

As part of the university's Martin Luther King Jr. service opportunities, student volunteers assembled the no-sew blankets. "We made 21 blankets," said Lynn Pierson, Assistant Director for Community Service. "It's something the students can do together and it benefits someone in need." The blankets were distributed to flood victims through the Red Cross and the Salvation Army. Learn how to help flood victims in your area, contact your local chapter of the Red Cross here.

Lecture To Explore River Art

The Susquehanna Gateway Heritage Area will host nationally renowned artist and curator Rob Evans on May 9. Evans will present a lecture on the touring exhibit he organized in 2005 titled "Visions of the Susquehanna: 250 Years of Paintings by American Masters." Evans will talk about the influence of the Susquehanna on his own evolution as an artist as well as the long legacy of prominent artists who have painted this majestic river through the centuries. In addition he will give a behind the scenes account of the process of researching, organizing and pulling together the first major survey of paintings of the Susquehanna River in more than 25 years. Researchers on the River

Prof. Jonathan Niles

The PA Fish and Boat Commission, the agency charged with protecting and enhancing our state's aquatic resources, has found a helping hand in Susquehanna University biology students, and their professor, Dr. Jonathan Niles. With over 45,000 waterways waiting to be documented for wild trout populations (~4,500 streams have been documented) the Commission has quite an overwhelming task. Collaborating with Dr. Niles and other local colleges, universities, and conservation groups has helped the Commission, provided valuable research experiences for students, and has resulted in successfully protecting fragile streams from development.

“The wild trout stream designation is important since it affords these waterways and wetlands the highest protection from development by the state Department of Environmental Protection,” says Niles. “They consider this information when issuing permits and this is particularly important when we think about development pressures that the state is currently facing – development from urbanization and natural gas extraction.” Read more about this research here.
